Summer brings with it a time of reflection as the school year and active Junior League year have come to a close. As we, the members of the Junior League of Montgomery, look back on this past year, we can see how we have risen to Laura Stevenson’s challenge to “Touch One Life.” In the placement spotlight section of this month’s League Logs, you will read about many lives touched through our work in the community in places like Lee High School, the Family Sunshine Center and the Boys and Girls Club, to name a few. I am sure you will enjoy reading about our Sustainer of the Year, Charlene Holtsford, and the many ways she has touched lives through her community service.

Summer also brings a time of anticipation, looking forward to the year ahead. With that in mind, we introduce you to the 2011-2012 Board of Directors. We appreciate their commitment to serve and eagerly anticipate the direction in which they will lead us.

The May General Membership Meeting combined the best of the last active year and a preview of the year to come. The awards our members earned this year are highlighted, along with the recipients of Community Grants for the upcoming year.

The goal of League Logs is to tell the community what the Junior League of Montgomery does. Thank you to all the people who have worked so hard this year to ensure that our story is told. In addition to our wonderful staff, we have been grateful for help from guest writers and photographers. Thanks to our advertising manager, our graphic designer and our printer for your hard work in producing our magazine. As we move into a new season of service, we eagerly anticipate hearing the story of continued community service and the ripples you create when you touch one life.

At the end of a long hallway at our Junior League office, sits a small quiet room. It is a room that houses tall filing cabinets with documents of our records not printed on paper anymore due to the convenience of computers. It also houses a treasure trove of photographs and mementos of our very special organization. During my year as president I would sometimes wander down that hallway, turn the knob of the door to that lonely room, and magically be transported to the past. I would sort through old pictures and newspaper clippings. They were meticulously placed in scrapbooks, some in piles, brown with age and very delicate. These papers became precious to me. They told the tale of the Junior League of Montgomery in words and pictures. They also spoke of those who kept a visual, tangible record of all the activities of our organization these 85 years. I always left that room with a better knowledge of where we came from and a great sense of pride of who we are today.

A year has gone by in my life and the life of the Junior League of Montgomery. Although this year is just another drop in the bucket for this organization, it has been a year that I will always remember and cherish. This year as we pressed forward with our mission of strengthening families and developing the potential of women, I know that we helped to make Montgomery a better place. Through our fundraisers and community projects we have touched many lives. It has been an honor to serve as the 2010/2011 JLM President! Thank you for all you have given me. I have truly been touched.

MACOA

The Montgomery Area Council on Aging has served seniors in Montgomery, Autauga, Elmore, Coosa and Tallapoosa counties for over 30 years, and the Junior League has played a pivotal part for over 10 years. The meals prepared are for seniors who are homebound and unable to prepare their own meals. The MACOA placement is flexible for expecting mothers, mothers of young children or ladies who just love to cook! Each person had to prepare 50 frozen nutritional meals to complete their placement and deliver them to the MACOA office in downtown Montgomery.

Lee High School Boys Book Club

The Robert E. Lee High School Library Committee piloted a reading program for young ladies in the fall which was a big hit on campus. The librarians invited members of the J.R.O.T.C. to participate in another “Book Café” event. The book selected was The Tuskegee Airmen by Philip Brooks. Several copies were ordered and the selected students read the book before attending the book café. On the morning of the event, League volunteers decorated the café with red, white and blue swags hung along the hallway, along with paper airplanes and helicopters strung from the ceiling. Upon entering the library, students were greeted by second generation airman Colonel R.J. Lewis. Colonel Lewis led a discussion about the book and his life as a Tuskegee Airman. He shared with the students how he learned to fly at the historic Moton Field in Tuskegee by legendary aviator C. Alfred “Chief” Anderson. Colonel Lewis has given seminars about the airmen for over 36 years in an effort to inspire students in their chosen careers and education. The students enjoyed visiting with Colonel Lewis and they appreciated special gifts donated by the Army Air National Guard.

Boys and Girls Club

Beginning last summer, a committee of seven Junior League members had the wonderful opportunity to work with the West End Boys & Girls Club. Chaired by Darci Odom, the committee’s goal was to spend time with the children helping them with their homework. Most of the children needed regular help in the main areas of Language Arts and Math. The tutoring schedule was steady, meeting every week with the children so that as the year progressed members saw the children progress in their subjects. The children also began to get into a good rhythm of getting their homework done. One child excelled so much that she is now enrolled for the Magnet program next year! This was clearly a win-win placement for both the children who improved in academic areas and the committee members who were rewarded in multiple ways. The committee members liked walking into the club and seeing the kids jump to do their homework and were happy to see great improvement in the reading skills of the children. The rewards they received from working with the children came from the children’s improvement in grades, their smiles and the big hugs they would receive on their way out the door.

League members Jacqueline Hughes, Lindsey McLendon, Ashley Meldrum, Lena Moore, Trisha Osuch, & Pamela Selmar all enjoyed their placement and time spent with the children.

Impact Alabama

Early spring brings many things each year…budding trees and flowers, warmer weather, and TAXES. This year, a group of League members assisted low-income, working families in preparing and filing their taxes.
Impact Alabama’s SaveFirst program trains volunteers to offer free tax preparation services, financial literacy information and opportunities for savings and investments to low-income families. The SaveFirst program exists to ensure that low-income, working families receive the full Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) and other credits to which they are entitled, counteract predatory lending practices and encourage long-term savings.

In the Montgomery area, there are over 30,000 families that qualify for the EITC. About 75 percent of those families use commercial tax preparers who offer short term loans with exorbitant interest rates which are repaid directly out of the tax return. Free tax preparation ensures that these individuals and families do not pay commercial preparers for such services, providing the family economic gains.

This year, in Montgomery, SaveFirst volunteers prepared 622 tax returns and helped taxpayers claim almost $1.5 million in refunds. SaveFirst saved these taxpayers $186,600 in commercial preparation fees. Statewide, SaveFirst prepared 4,320 returns, helping taxpayers claim $8.2 million in refunds and saving $1.3 million in commercial preparation fees.

In early January, League members serving on the Impact Alabama committee were required to participate in 8 hours of computerized training and pass an IRS certification test. Following the training and certification, each member worked approximately 23 hours in the SaveFirst tax center, which was open from January 24 through February 26. Under supervision of SaveFirst staff members, League members worked alongside students from Huntingdon College and other community volunteers in preparing taxes.

Committee chairperson Claiborne Moore reports, “From my perspective, this was a really rewarding placement for several reasons. There were tangible results – completed tax returns for people who would have otherwise either wasted money on tax preparation or not received the full refund to which they were entitled. I learned a lot about taxes—various credits, filing status, deductions, etc. I feel like our time was used efficiently. We really made a difference for a lot of people!”

Cancer Wellness Center

This past holiday season, the Junior League of Montgomery and the Montgomery Cancer Wellness Foundation worked together by giving help and hope to local cancer patients and their families. The Cancer Wellness Foundation is a nonprofit organization committed to providing quality programs and services to cancer patients and their families. Since their incorporation in 1997, the Montgomery Cancer Wellness Foundation (www.montgomerycancer.com) has provided exceptional educational, supportive and research services to address the emotional and physical needs of cancer patients and their families. These programs and services are free of charge and available to all cancer patients. The Foundation is solely supported through the efforts and contributions of businesses, organizations and individuals.

Every dollar contributed to the Foundation is used in the Montgomery and Central Alabama area. This year, the Junior League of Montgomery donated $8,000 to the Foundation and over 100 hours of volunteer time. The Montgomery Cancer Wellness committee members worked on two wonderful projects.

Committee members decorated four Christmas trees with doves, ribbons, ornaments and bows. Each Christmas season, individuals are given the opportunity to purchase doves in honor of their friends and family members who are cancer survivors, and in memory of those who have lost their battle. These beautiful and inspiring Christmas trees were placed throughout the Montgomery Cancer Center.

Committee members also worked with Angels Friends. Angel Friends is a program that provides cancer patients and their families an enjoyable and memorable holiday. Members focused on meeting... families’ basic needs like food and clothing, but also knew it would not be an exciting Christmas without TOYS!! Members shopped for the families from their Christmas Wish List, wrapped the gifts and delivered them to their homes. The cancer patients and their families got the special holiday they deserve no matter what they may be going through. “The expression on a child’s face when they open a new toy is priceless, but the glow on the face of the mother and father as you deliver presents to their family in a time of need is heartwarming.” LeeAnn Smith, Cancer Wellness Committee Member.

Chair of the placement was Kelly Whitaker. The members of the Cancer Wellness Placement were Tina Booth, Christina Conner, Anna Dees, Allison Ferrell, Mandy Franks, Anne Hill, Nicci Jones, Leslie Meadows, Amanda Pemberton, Amy Sadler, LeeAnn Smith, Heather Talley and Anna Wilson.

Montgomery County Water Festival

Approximately 2800 fourth grade students representing 40 public and private schools in Montgomery County attended the Montgomery County Water Festival on the campus of Auburn University Montgomery. The Water Festival is an educational field trip provided free to all Montgomery County public, private and home schools where students participate in three hands-on activities and attend an environmental entertainment session.

The students participated in three 30-minute hands-on activities designed to appeal to various learning styles and reinforce the concepts taught at the festival. Students made Water Cycle bracelets with colored beads to represent different stages in the water cycle. They also built a mini-filtration system to learn how pollutants enter our water supply, the process used to purify water, and how difficult it is to remove the pollutants. Finally students made an edible aquifer.

They learned what an aquifer is and how it works, what non-point source pollution is, and how toxic waste affects our groundwater. Common food items, such as ice cream, ice, lemon-lime soda and chocolate syrup were then used to build their own aquifer model.

After the hands-on activities, the classes attend a 45- minute educational performance by Steve Trash, a wonderful and dynamic entertainer, who performed magic tricks and illusions with the students to reinforce the material taught in the hands-on activities.

Thanks to chairman Lynne Payne and committee members Aimee Bentley, Christine Cook, Jewell Dickson, Charlotte Largen, Tammi Long, Tara Sinco, Amy Strickland and Wendy Wilker.
Have you wondered how it is that each year we get this great list of community grant recipients? How do community non-profit organizations apply for JLM grants? What goes into the selection process? Who chooses these grant recipients?

These questions may be answered by the JLM members who serve on the Community Research Committee. This busy committee works tirelessly receiving grant applications, reviewing applications, visiting applicant organizations, and attending numerous meetings to discuss volunteer possibilities and fund requirements for each applicant organization.

Serving on the Community Research Committee involves a two-year commitment. The committee is comprised of 10–12 members. The process starts each summer as community non-profit organizations are notified that the JLM’s grant application may be accessed online. Generally, each non-profit organization is asked to submit a 4-page Project Proposal Form to the committee in August of each year. The Project Proposal Form gathers information such as the purpose and goals of the project, the plans for the administration of the project, the segments of the community served by the project, how many JLM volunteers would be needed, and what the specific duties and time requirements would be required of the JLM volunteers.

After receiving the Project Proposal Forms from the non-profit agencies, the committee members get to work. This past year, a record number of 40 grant applications were received and reviewed by the committee. Committee members are individually assigned several grants to research. Each member personally visits the proposed grant recipient to ask pointed questions regarding the agency, its mission, the volunteer opportunities for JLM members and how the funds will be used. The full committee meets weekly during the fall months to discuss the grant applications and the findings of the committee members. After all the grants have been researched, presented and initially voted on, the grant applications with the highest vote totals are then considered in a meeting where the committee votes on the final placements and the amount of money to award each agency. This process can be quite lengthy and can get tense. Many committee members become quite passionate about the agencies they research. Committee members are equally passionate about finding the best volunteer opportunities for JLM members, as well as being good stewards of the money JLM members have worked so hard to raise.

After the final committee vote, the agencies with the highest number of votes are presented to the JLM Board of Directors. Proposed projects are finally voted on by the JLM membership in our January or February membership meeting. However, projects are not officially accepted until a minimum number of JLM members volunteer to staff the project during our placement days in April. Thus, a membership-approved project may be denied funding if members do not choose to volunteer for the project. In May of each year, the League and the grant recipient sign a contract and the grant recipient receives the check funding the project.

Serving on the Community Research Committee allows each member the opportunity to learn more about the non-profit agencies in the River Region as well as the positive impact JLM members can have in partnering with these agencies.

If you are part of a non-profit organization that may want to request a grant from the Junior League of Montgomery, please visit our website www.jlmontgomery.org for more information. Laura Stevenson, Marnie Dillon and Suzanne Davidson traveled to Philadelphia in May to attend the Association of Junior Leagues International 89th annual conference. The theme for this year’s conference was “Transformation”. The transformation theme is focused on using the league’s long history and many accomplishments to position itself as the most relevant women’s organization in the world.

The ladies from the Junior League of Montgomery attended many workshops during the conference such as, “Financial Awareness”, “Collaborative Decision-Making”, “Making Your Meetings More Engaging”, and “High Performing Partnerships between the President and President-Elect”. They also attended the annual meeting and enjoyed hearing the current AJLI President, Delly Beekman, as well as the keynote speaker, Nick Kristof. Kristof is a two-time Pulitzer Prize winning journalist, whose latest book, Half the Sky, seeks to enlighten people about the plight of women in the developing world and lays out a plan to empower those same women to be agents of change.

An important development at the annual meeting was the vote to raise dues. While the Junior League of Montgomery and many other leagues voted to oppose the increase, it passed. As a result of this vote, a four dollar increase will take effect July 1, 2012 and a second four dollar increase will take effect July 1, 2013.

The members of the Junior League of Philadelphia were wonderful hosts! The weekend was a wonderful time of learning and networking and reinvigorated the ladies of the Junior League of Montgomery to come back and get to work for 2011-2012.
Charlene Holtsford has been an avid supporter of her community for years. The 2002-03 President of the Junior League of Montgomery, Charlene has continued to serve her community in many different ways. Charlene continues to exemplify the mission of the Junior League of Montgomery as she promotes voluntarism through key leadership positions in community organizations, develops the potential of women by mentoring others, and improves the community through effective action and leadership through her service at her church, on community boards, and as a part of community initiatives. We are proud to honor Charlene Holtsford as our 2011 Sustainer of the Year.

Charlene grew up in Mobile, graduated from the University of Alabama with a bachelor of arts in communications, and has lived in Montgomery since 1987. Charlene and husband Alex L. Holtsford, Jr. have raised their three sons here. David will begin his senior year at Trinity Presbyterian School; Charlie is starting his second year at the University of Virginia; Trey will begin his second year of law school at the University of Alabama Law School. The Holtsfords enjoy family time together. Charlene enjoys cooking for her family and friends whenever possible.

Charlene joined the Junior League of Montgomery in 1992. She credits the JLM with developing her potential as a fundraiser. She admits that she is an avid fundraiser at heart. She enjoyed serving as chairman of Holiday Market, where she saw all the puzzle pieces come together. She enjoyed the camaraderie of the committee, the organization of the event, and especially the challenge of solicitations and the rush you receive when an individual or business agrees to financially support the League! When she chaired Holiday Market, her committee was responsible for soliciting funds from supporters. She discovered that she had the skills and drive to be a fundraiser.

Charlene also credits the League for some of her most cherished friendships in Montgomery. She enjoyed serving alongside many different women in the overall goal of bettering the community. She also expressed appreciation of the experience, wisdom, and advice from past presidents of the League.

Currently, Charlene serves on the board of directors for Bridge Builders of Alabama. She is a past board member of the Family Sunshine Center (FSC) where she served as President of the Board of Directors from 2008-2009. Even though she’s no longer on the board of the FSC, she continues to volunteer with the FSC’s annual fundraiser, Making Homes Safe Havens.

Charlene feels that one of the League’s challenges is to constantly evaluate our own fundraisers or research and create new fundraising events that are exciting and appealing to a diverse population. According to Charlene, local non profits are in need now more than ever for local funding. She thinks that we should always look to increase the funds we raise, so that we can give even more money and volunteer time back to the community. Charlene would encourage an ongoing research and development committee to think outside the box for new and exciting fundraising ideas.

Charlene is a firm believer that success in life has nothing to do with what you gain or accomplish, but rather what you do for others. The Junior League offers its members the perfect opportunity to make our community a better place for women, children and families.

When asked what advice she would give to new League members, Charlene said she would encourage them to stretch themselves and take responsibilities outside of their comfort zone. Charlene said that there were many times that she wondered if she had made a mistake when she accepted the challenge of being President of the Junior League of Montgomery. Now, she says, she would not trade that experience for anything! The League is an excellent place to strengthen your leadership skills and explore your strengths and gifts while positively impacting the community.
The 60th anniversary of Bloomingdeals began like any other—with a long line of eager shoppers waiting at the doors of Garrett Coliseum. The enthusiastic multitude moved into the sale at a steady and orderly pace once the doors officially opened for business. Many shoppers arrived at Bloomingdeals armed with strollers, carts and bags, making it much easier to transport their purchases around the floor of the Coliseum. As always, the event boasted a myriad of pre-loved treasures donated by League members, sustainers and area merchants. From clothing and baby supplies to crystal and furniture, the quality, volume and variety of the goods for sale provided a unique occasion for shoppers looking for a great deal. “Bloomingdeals continues to be so popular because most customers shop for items that they otherwise couldn’t afford,” Joanna Kirkland, Bloomingdeals Steering Committee Chair, said. “Because our membership donates so many quality items, there are deals, not junk.”

The groundwork for Bloomingdeals, the League’s second largest fundraiser, began last summer and continued throughout the League season. “The last couple of weeks before the sale is the most challenging part—laying out the floor, organizing and pricing items—that’s when we need the most manpower.” Joanna said. “The dirt is in the details.” With provisionals, actives, sustainers and even husbands and boyfriends pitching in, the countless hours of planning and work resulted in two days and a total of eight hours of shopping time for nearly a thousand customers.

Carla Gieske, Set-up and Supplies Committee Chairman, worked persistently to make certain that set up was orderly and that donations were smoothly moved into the appropriate areas. This year set up began earlier than usual, the Friday proceeding the event, and early preparations were complete by Monday morning.

League members were treated to an extra chance to purchase Bloomingdeals goods on Thursday evening at the Preview Party. In honor of Bloomingdeals’ anniversary, the 1950s was the theme for the night and Steering Committee members and League Board members attended the event dressed in attire from that decade. Musician Henry Pugh entertained members and their guests who also enjoyed wine and a variety of appetizers. “I thought the event was a great success,” Joanna said. “The girls working were having fun and most attendees stayed over two hours.” The event counted as a meeting credit, and members paid $10 admission to shop early. New this year, the Preview Party was held on the floor of the Coliseum instead of being confined to the Boutique area. Members could buy items from the entire Bloomingdeals selection at twice the marked price, including items in Bloomie’s Boutique. The Boutique displayed new with tag items donated by local merchants and the membership. The Boutique even included formal wear contributed by Bridals by Penolia’s. Only half a dozen boutique items remained at the end of the night and they were subsequently snatched up during the Silent Auction. Only items from the sustainer section, Bloomie’s Best, and furniture were excluded from the early sale.

Joanna attributes the success of the 2011 Bloomingdeals to the hard work and dedication of the Steering Committee chairs. “Each woman is enthusiastic about this fundraiser and truly loves Bloomingdeals,” Joanna said. “Without devotion this event couldn’t happen.”

The Bloomingdeals Steering Committee included Joanna Kirkland, Bloomingdeals Chair; Jennifer Rogers, Bloomingdeals Co-chair; Renee LaBaaza, Boutique; Megan McCarthy, Cashiers/Treasurer; Shalissa Magee, Garden Cafe; Karen Herman, Merchandising and Quality Control; Marie Wise, Personnel; Ann Winborne, Publicity; Heather Pickard, Secretary; Carla Gieske, Set-up and Supplies; and Stacey Kimmel, Tickets.

On Tuesday, May 10 under the watchful eyes of the giraffes at the Montgomery Zoo, Junior League of Montgomery members and other community leaders gathered to celebrate the achievements of the league during the past year and preview the work ahead for 2011-12.

While the lions roared in the background, members sipped this year’s signature cocktail, a cosmopolitan before the meeting was called to order. Laura Stevenson opened the meeting, her last as President of the Junior League of Montgomery, by welcoming everyone before introducing Ashley White, Community Research Chair.

Ashley had the privilege of announcing the funded placements of the upcoming year as she introduced representatives of the selected organizations. The Family Justice Center will continue to be supported by the JLM with a $15,000 grant. A new addition to the community, the Cloverdale Playhouse also received $15,000 in funding. Other funded agencies include Aid to Inmate Mothers, the Children’s Center of Montgomery, Easter Seals’ Dogs on Call program, the Family Sunshine Center, the Mid-Alabama Coalition for the Homeless, the Montgomery Educational Foundation, the Campaign to Prevent Teen Pregnancy, Troy University’s Rosa Parks Museum and Rebuilding Together.

In celebration of the JLM’, eighty-fifth year of service, the 1926 Society and Fund has been formed to collect monies to fund a special community project. In celebration of our 85th year of service, we are creating a fund to collect monies to help with a project. This year, we’ll be giving funds collected to the Montgomery Zoo to perform a makeover of the front entrance of the Zoo.

Jeanie Parnell, Nominating Committee Chair, then introduced our 2011 Sustainer of the Year, Charlene Holtsford. Charlene is a past President of JLM who is dedicated to improving her community through effective action and leadership.

With the devastating tornadoes that cut a path of destruction through so much of North Alabama still fresh in the minds of members of JLM, Meg Lewis, Jodie Champion and Kara Cosby provided opportunities to help communities in need. Meg informed members that ASF is presenting Moonlight & Magnolias on Wednesday, May 25, at 7:30pm to benefit Alabama tornado relief. ASF & WSFA-12 News teamed up to raise funds and give all proceeds to the Red Cross’ tornado relief. Tickets were “pay what you can,” with a suggested donation of $20. Jodie related that Community Assistance Funds were forwarded to the Junior League of Tuscaloosa to be distributed as they saw fit. Kara Cosby then thanked members who brought goods to be donated to the relief effort.

Outgoing President Laura Stevenson then took to the podium to reflect on her year of service before ceremonially passing the gavel to Marnie Dillon. Marnie thanked Laura for her commitment to JLM and presented her with gifts commemorating her time spent as JLM president. Then Marnie introduced the incoming Board of Directors and announced her theme for the coming year: Live, Learn, Lead.

First, our panel:

Leah grew up in Dothan among a family of avid readers. Her favorite childhood author was Noel Streatfeild who wrote Thursday Child and Ballet Shoes along with other classics. Their recommendations:

The Shadow of the Wind by Carlos Ruiz Zafon

Set in Barcelona in the 1950’s, ten-year-old Daniel Sempere discovers a rare and valuable book. He soon discovers that every copy of every book written by the author, Julian Carax, is being burned. Daniel’s coming of age mission, encouraged by his bookseller father, leads him to investigate the life, death, and secrets of Julian Carax. An intriguing cast of characters and a plot filled with mystery, adventure and romance make this novel a must read.
Gung Ho!: Turn On the People In Any Organization by Ken Blanchard and Sheldon Bowles

Written by a management legend and a master entrepreneur Gung Ho! is a business book packed with invaluable information, as well as a compelling story. Through the story of business leaders Peggy Sinclair and Andy Longclaw, Blanchard and Bowles reveal how two managers saved a failing company and turned in record profits with record productivity. The core ideas of Gung Ho! are simple: worthwhile work guided by goals and values; putting workers in control of their production; and cheering one another on. The book is a management tool that gives a step-by-step outline of foolproof ways to increase productivity by fostering excellent morale in the workplace.

Ahab’s Wife by Sena Jeter Naslund

Naslund’s epic work of historical fiction uses Herman Melville’s Moby-Dick as a window into early-19th-century America. Through the eye of an outsider, a woman, the novel suggests that New England life was broader and richer than Melville’s manly world of men, ships, and whales, creating heroines from his lesser characters. The narrator, Una, flees to the New England coast from Kentucky to escape her father’s Puritanism and to pursue a more exalted life. She gets whaling out of her system early: disguised as a boy, Una has her ship sunk by her own monstrous whale. Rescued, she returns to land and pursues the life of the mind, where she meets the commanding Capt. Ahab. Naslund exposes the reader to the unsung, real-life heroes of Melville’s world, including Margaret Fuller and her Boston salon, and Nantucket astronomer Maria Mitchell. There is a chance meeting with a veiled Nathaniel Hawthorne in the woods, and throughout the novel the story brims with references to the giants of literature: Shakespeare, Goethe, Coleridge, Keats, and Wordsworth.

The Whistling Season by Ivan Doig

The Whistling Season is set in the past in rural eastern Montana. The narrator is an aging Montana state superintendent of schools, Paul Milliron, who is charged with deciding the fate of the state’s last scattered rural schools. The task brings Paul to recall the autumn of 1909, when he was 13 and attending his own one-room school. Recently widowed, Paul’s father hires a housekeeper, Rose. The beguiling Rose brings with her a brother, the scholarly Morris. The local schoolteacher deserts her charges, leaving Morris to take over her job. Though he’s a novice to the West, to children and to teaching children, Morris brings inspiration to the task at hand. The flashback narration maintains the book’s theme of the different ways of learning at any age.

Galileo’s Daughter by Dava Sobel

Inspired by the remarkable surviving letters of Galileo’s daughter, a cloistered nun, this biography takes place between the 16th and 17th centuries in Italy. Their letters to each other detail the close relationship between Galileo and his daughter Suor Maria Celeste. Of Galileo’s three illegitimate children, the eldest best mirrored his own brilliance, industry, and sensibility, and by virtue of these qualities became his confidante. Her loving support proved to be her father’s greatest source of strength throughout his most productive and tumultuous years. Galileo’s Daughter recolors the personality and accomplishment of a mythic figure whose clash with Catholic doctrine continues to define the schism between science and religion. Moving between Galileo’s grand public life and Maria Celeste’s sequestered world, Sobel illuminates the Florence of the Medicis and the papal court in Rome during the pivotal era when humanity’s perception of its place in the cosmos was about to be overturned.

Persuasion by Jane Austen

Persuasion is Jane Austen’s last completed novel and was published after her death. As the novel opens, the Elliot family is faced with the certainty of losing their estate, Kellynch. They embark upon a plan to lease the estate to and Admiral in the Royal Navy, whose brother-in-law happens to be the lost love of the novel’s heroine, Anne. When she fell in love with him more than seven years earlier, Frederick Wentworth was intelligent and ambitious, but poor. Her family and friends deemed this match unsuitable for Anne, so she broke off the engagement. When Wentworth shows up at Kellynch with his wartime successes and financial gains, he is suddenly very much the center of attention. Unfortunately for Anne, he is uninterested in falling in love with her again, and she must find a way to win him back.

Sarah’s Keys by Tatiana de Rosnay

De Rosnay takes a rarely-mentioned piece of French history, the 1942 roundups and deportations of Paris Jews, and spins a fascinating novel. The plot alternates between Sarah’s 1942 experiences and the modern-day life of transplanted American Julia Jarmond. Julia’s assignment to write an article covering the anniversary of the Vel’ d’Hiv’ roundups leads to her discovery that the apartment she and her husband plan to move into was once occupied by a Jewish family who was deported. In her search to determine what happened to the family, she is confronted by a past filled with guilty secrets that must be addressed in the present.

Community Council Vice President
Junior League of Montgomery
3570 Carter Hill Road
Montgomery, AL 36111

Dear Jodie,

Thank you very much for the Junior League of Montgomery’s support of MACH’s Blanket Drive. With the League’s support, we collected more blankets, sweaters, scarves, and general clothing than any previous year. At last tally, we have donations from more families, individuals, and businesses than any previous year. As a result, we were able to provide more blankets to those who requested them.

MACH members and volunteers were able to make deliveries to families in need this week. Our volunteers were extremely appreciative and thrilled to see that their efforts made a difference in the lives of those who received the donated items. Thank you for your continued support. We are proud to have you as a member of our community.

Sincerely,

Molly M. Stone

The 2010-2011 Provisional Year concluded in April after a fun year working together as new members. The Provisional Class completed their 3 spring fundraisers: Beads for Blood Blood Drive, Kids in the Kitchen and assisting with the Blue Gray Tennis tournament. Our class really worked hard this year and also made a lot of new friends!

Provisional members partnered with the American Red Cross to hold a Mardi Gras themed blood drive on March 7 at Eastdale Mall. They recruited donors and hosted the event. Donors received Mardi Gras beads in exchange for their donation. This drive helped fill a critical need in our area blood supply.

The Provisional Committee was pleased to present the Tonda West Provisional Award to an outstanding provisional, Kisha Bailey. It is always difficult to pick a stand-out provisional because so many of the ladies take on leadership roles and demonstrate a passion for service. Kisha was selected and honored with this award for her outstanding efforts this year. They included helping chair one of our mini-placements, selling the most tickets for Taste of the River Region (provisional fundraiser) and organizing efforts to donate funds to a local public school for school supplies. Kisha has great enthusiasm and seems to always have a smile on her face. It’s been a pleasure to have her in the class this year and we look forward to seeing her and our other provisionals grow and develop in their service to the community. Thanks for your hard work and congratulations, Kisha!
